Jimmy Carter's regional appeal entried him to landslate victories in Democratic primaries in all three states. He woo 50 percent nr more of the vote in csch nf them, and appeared likely to harvest more than 80 delegates in the South.

Here a stripe,

there a plaid. You'd think this was a Man's Shirt ad

The fabrics are the same. They all have that crisp, confident air that causes one Englishman to say to another "You're looking haberdashing today, Dudley."

These stripes are smart (and slightly sassy). These neat little checks are good for your fashion-bank account. And our tattersall plaids are natty and nice.

Today's idea (and a jolly good one, too) comes from some clever chaps at a company called Amanda. The Amandans, being hep to the trend, which is that menswear is going to be the new thing for women to wear, whipped up this cool shirt collection

And we, because we like you to be ahead of the game, placed an order and said "Send same pronto."

So here you have it: tomorrow's look today. And here's how it's tailored: softly, with a feminine flair. Nobody will mistake you for your brother in this "menswear."

We suggest you sport our sporty shirts not pulled down tight, but gently bloused to give a fresh, flattering new proportion to your straight new skirts and skinny new pants. And how about wearing one over a long-sleeved tee for an extra dash of flash?

> Everything here (and we've got more cool styles in our Blouse Shop on three) comes in easy-care Dacron® polyester and cotton for sizes 6 to 16. And please note that these chosen three have new shorter spread collars, new roll 'em up sleeves, top pockets and shoulder epaulets.

Now, you can go bold in stripes of navy or yellow at 22.00. Or you can check out in yellow and red, also 22.00. And/or you can top it all off with a red and blue plaid tunic, 20.00.

But you really shouldn't pass up this chance to go the guys one better. At Altman's, the store that's full of bright ideas for you.

P.S. to men. Don't feel left out. We're planning an ad on a terrific new shirt for you.

ratiog coodition of iotellectual inquiry in our land" following the Indian Government's suspension of clvil liberties 11 mooths ago. And there are other signs of the change all over India, a vast, diverse country where the exciting clash of ideas used to mark countless conversations every day.

In Calcutta, Satyajit Ray, the famous film maker, has decided that his next picture will steer clear of the hiting - social realism that characterized his last one because "this is ont the time to be making sharp comments on political subjects."

At the universities, the mood has grown cautious, the talk more subdued. A very -prominent historian shakes his head and says with anguísh:

"We'll become semiliterate, insensitive, brutelized, malleable and passive. You can't break new ground intellectually if there is repression and you feel you must be careful all the time."

Jail a Concern

After the interview, walking out to a rose garden now respleodeot io yellow, pink and red, the professor anxiously added, as so many do these days, "Please doo't use my name; I'm not quite reedy to go to jail yet."

In fact, relatively few intellectuals and scholars are believed to he among the tens nf thousands of political prisooers rounded up since last June, except for professors and students who were active in the Jan Sangh Party, a right-wing Hindu movement that Prime Minister Indira Gandhi has made a special target

The arrests have had a chilling effect oo the kind of dissect that was student commonplace a year or two ago, though the mood seems have relaxed a hit in the last few mooths, perhaps because many share the view of the Bombay professor who said, "If they were going to come round for me, I suppose they would have dooe so by now.

upporters of Prime Minlster Gandhi point out that the state of emergency that her Government declared last June, altering the course of the whole society, has brought an eod to the tunultuous campus rioting, which had all but paralyzed many institutions in 1974 and 1975. # 'A Rear-Guard Action

"We're fighting a sort of rear-guard action," the pro-fessor explained. "They'd love to bave us signing petitions for them, writing letters to The Guardian or The Economist saying things are just fine here in Iodia. But we're bolding out and keeping quiet; it's all we can do." With some bitterness, the man said that the anti-

Government iotellectuals of Iodia feel "somewhat looely in our position, now that the journalists heve knuckled under, the politicians have caved in or gooe to jail, and the lawyers have been overwhelmed by the rulings of pliant judges."

Yuma, Colo., Is Appraising the Candidates Cautiously

By GRACE LICHTENSTEIN Carter seems to appeal more to Republicans and independ-YUMA, Colo., May 22-"I still like Immy Carter," Dr. Richard Hemphill, dentist and farmer, was saying at dinner last night. "I just wish he'd tell us more."

His daughter, Mrs. Debra Roundtree, shook her head. "I heard his foreign policy the other day and I couldn't understand a word of it," she said.

Earlier, in the Wooden Spoon cafe on Main Street,

> This is another in a series of articles on voter attitudes in four American communities urban, small city, suburban and rural-that will appear from time to time during the 1976 compaign.

Mr. Carter's name provoked skeptical looks from two llb-Democrats who are teachers.

"You mean old Pepsodent?" Ernest Anderson asked. "He's going to have to de more than just smile," his wife, Colene, added.

In Yuma, a prosperous farming community of 2,500 people in northeast Colorado, the front-running contender for the Democratic Presiden-tial nomination bas gone a margin of nearly 2 to 1 over George McGovern in 1972, could vote Democratic

The irony bere is that Mr. when asked about the Fordeots than to Democrats, especially those who rate them-selves liberal. By the same token, Ronald Reagan, who has many outspokeo supporters bere, is liked by many consevative Democrats, while younger and more progressive Republicans tend to express a lukewarm support for President Ford. As the precoovention political season moves along, Yuma residents are appraising the candidates about the same way they look over a bull at a livestock show or a new combine in a John Deere dealer's lot-slowly, carefully and with one hand oo their wallets. President Ford started at a disadvantage because most local farmers were angry at his brief embargo on the Rus-sian wheat sale last summer.

Nothing he has done since has won them over, except the moves he has made in what most people view as a reaction to Mr. Reagan's prooding.

Candid Candidate

Thus the argument that the Ford-Reagan battle is aplitting the party danger-ously will not wash in Yuma. "I think he's been more candid on some issues," Neel Leathers, a Democrat who manages the big co-op grain elevator, said of Mr. Reagan. "He's taken precise stands and he hasn't evaded the is-

Reagan struggle. "The Presi-dent has been forced to re-assess bis position on some things—busing, the Panama Canal, Kissinger. I don't think that's divisive."

Mr. Carter seemed initially attractive to Yuma residents ganizing," said Sally Beach, a because of his farm back-ground, his religious convic-tions, his non-Washiogtoo, housewife and mother of two young children, whose husband is a trucker. Presidential politics is not the only political game in town right now anyway. A move by a group called Awake to repeal the state's four-year-old equal rights ameodment has stirred a small yet growing and emotional response.

1285 1 TO DA

Wasn't it a wonderful Sunday?" one asked. "Wasn't it lovely?" the other agreed. They were not talking about Sunday's pleasant weather, but the discomfort of Representative Wayne Levere Hays, the Ohio Democrat who, according to The Washington Post of Sunday, kept a woman in a $14,900-ayear job on his committee staff in exchange for her sexual favors. Mr. Hays today admitted having a relation-ahip with the woman, but de-nied that she had been hired for her sexual favors.

The irony of the situation was not lost on employees and members of the House and others who have feit the wrath of the blunt-spoken Mr. Hays. The 65-year-old chairman of the House Administration Committee, who has not hesitated to criticize others for questionable work and payroll practices, is now involved in an alleged case of questionable payroll practice himself.

It was Mr. Hays, for ex-ample, who headed an inves-tigation in 1966 into the pay-roll abuses of Representative Adam Clayton Powell, the late Harlem Democrat, that eventually led to Mr. Powell's exclusion from the

Formed Special Panel

It was Mr. Havs who announced in 1972 that he had formed a special subcommit-tee on superfluous employees to investigate how many unnecessary workers were on the House payroll. And it was Mr. Hsys who

In 1974 criticized the House Judiciary Committee and threatened for a time to hold up additional funds for the Nixon impeachment inquiry after two young committee workers gave him some back talk on a House elevator.

. Mr. Hays told the House that the two young men said that they did not know who he was, and that he had re-

'That's pretty obvious. I am just another taxpayer, and one of the reasons why we have to pay so much Taxes is because we have so many arrogant little jerksonly I used a more emphatic word-like you around here drawing big salaries." Sioce he was first elected to the House in 1948, Mr. Hays has accumulated considerable power and has not hesitated to use it.

The House Administration Committee was a little-noticed housekeeping operation until Mr. Hays became its chairman in 1971. He began to supervise such matters as the price of haircuts in the House barbarshop and meals in the house restaurant (prices were raised so the operations would pay their own way), the removal of jump-seats so House elevator operators would have to stand like everybody else and the installation of computers and ### an electronic voting system in the House.

Fringe Benefits Raised Other committees have to go to Mr. Hays's committee to get approval of funds for payrolls and supplies to run their committees. Also, the fringe allowances for all Representatives for paid trips bome, stationery and staff money have been increased by Mr. Hays's committee without baving the full House vote on the increases. This procedure has enabled the representatives to get the additional benefits, with Mr. Hays, rather than them-selves, absorbing any criti-cism from the taxpayers hack home.

No operation of the Rouse is too small to escape Mr. Havs's attention. Testifying earlier this year before an Appropriations subcommittee on the budget for the House. he told of the steps he had taken to prevent employees' stealing from the House restaurant kitchen.

"I have orderd the policeman on the door to be rotated once a week instead of standing there by the year." he said, "and I have put the chef on notice. He said, Well, they are stealing be-cause they dnn't like the manager.' And I said, 'Well

Text of Hays's Statement to the House

I know my days on earth are numbered, and my service in this body may well be also . . . but I stand here before you today .... with my conscience now clear.

I sincerely hope that those responsible for this at The Washington Post, and Miss Ray, with her forthcoming book and appearance in Play-boy can say the same.

I hope that when the time comes to leave this House, which I love, Wayne Hays may be remembered as mean, arrogant and cantankerous and tough, but I hope Wayne Hays will never be thought of as dishonest.

In a previous biding place, a brother had died of suffocation when a hand was clamped over his face to keep him silent when the Germans were near. A second brother was horn in the pit.

As a 38-year-old woman, a professor of Jewish studies at Brooklyn College, Yaffa Eliach stood yesterday befnre an audience at the Graduate Center of the City University of New Ynrk, incarnating the subject of its conference on Jewish identity.

She had not come to tell her story. She told instead of a Jewish boy in Lithuania, herded with other Jews to an open trench to be murdered. He fell into the trench just before the guns fired, and emerged at night naked and covered with blood.

'Go Back to tha Grave'

When he knocked on a door later, it was opened just a crack and he was told, "Jew, go back to the grave where you belong." At another door the message was the same. Finally he said, "I am Jesus, and I bave come down from the cross." He was invited in, and he survived. Was conversion the only solution for Jewish identity, disappearance the only way to survival? It was not Professor Eliach's solution. What comes to us from the Hnlocaust is not despair," she said, "but determination "To remember the Holocaust, and thus oppose it," insisted Prof. Emil Fackenbeim Toronto University, "is a necessary condition for an anthentic Jewish identity. "Every Jew alive today, every Jew in this room is either elect. a survivor of the Holocaust or else, hut for an accident of history or geography. would have been murdered or never been horn."

He argued that the least authentic response for a Jew after the Holocaust was to feel guilt about Jewishness: intolerable was acceptance of the status of victim, inadmissible was complicity with opponents of the state of Israel. During two days of discussion-sponsored by the City University's committee on Judaic studies and the office of university and special programs-there was no unanimity on particulars. Prof.

Henry Feingold of Baruch College spoke of Jews as 'a passionately divided tribe," hut there was little tendency to suggest that any Jew, however estranged, could es-cape the fate of identity.

An Ungraded Course

"We can't give each nther grades," suggested Rahhi Emanuel Rackman of the Fifth Avenue Synagngue and the City University. "God gives us tha grades. Our job is not to define who is a good Jew, hut to help people be good Jews. You have observant Jews who are villains. and saints among the non-nbservant." Eliezer Berkovits, professor emeritus at the Hebrew Theo-logical College of Chicago, himself Orthodnx, said of the Reform Jew: "He's a Jew despite what he believes. I don't believe what he believes, but I am what he is and he is what I am. "To be a Jew does not mean 'I believe this or that.' To be a Jew means 'I am.'

re are elements in Jewish identity which identify a Jew even against his will. To be a Jew means to open up a hook of Jewish history and say, "This is my history, this is me." Salo W. Baron, professor emeritus at Columbia Univeristy, said that Jews had been considered a race, but that the fact of allowing conversion to Judaism, and the science of anthropology, dis-are by no means the only institutions that offer high-level courses of instruction. However, they have had a virtual monopoly on generating academic credits. Now this is changing. New York State has developed a functioning system whereby students can obtain academic credit for courses given by corporations, the state police, volunteer groups and other nonacademic organizations and institutions.

The program, known as the Project on Noncollegiate-Sponsored Instruction, reflects not only the growing significance of older students in higher education, but a growing belief that the educational needs of a complex society cannot be met by any nne type of institution. "There is a great deal of

"There is a great deal of good education going on in a lot of places other than col-leges," said John J. McGar-raghy, who directs the Prn-gram for the State Education Department. "We feel people "Booze: Mankind's Oklest Problem Drug" warrants two semester bours toward a graduate degree in counseling, psychology or social work. Officials emphasize that project recommendations are ought to get recognition for just that. It is up to each college to decide whether or their learning no matter how it is acquired."

The Project on Noncollegiate - Sponsored Instruction was approved by the Board of Regents in the fall of 1973 and began the following year on a pilot basis with funds from the Carnegie Corporation of New York and the federally-backed Fund for the Improvement of Postsecondary Education. It has since hecome a permanent program operated jointly with the American Council on Education. Courses Evaluated

In the last two years, the two nrganizations have re-viewed courses given by 45 organizations, ranging from the General Electric and Mohile Oil Companies to the Bronx Botonical Gardens and the Literacy League of America. ### School-Age Scientists Display a Lot Of Energy and Show How to Use It

By LESLIE MAITLAND

Hundreds of New York School 187 in Washington scientists have been studying alternative power sources for the future.

They have been exploring the merits of solar energy. water power, wind, lasers, masers, photosynthesis, the temperature levels of the sea aod earth and seemingly every other natural process on which this world relies. SUD-

None of the theorists and engineers is more than 18 years old, but many of their plans and models make their ages seem irrelevant. Their work-displayed at the Studeot Exposition on Energy Resources at the American Museum of Natural History-challenges the layman'a un-derstanding. SEER II—as the project, now in its second year, is called—is sponsored by the Board of Education and the Energy and Environment Committee of the New York Board of Trade to serve as a catalyst for energy development and conservation. One Entry Per School

Each public and parochial school in the city was invited to submit one entry on the elementary, junior high or high school level to compete for prizes-trips that are being sponsored and arranged by a variety of corporations.

Yesterday, 18 judges repre-senting the fields of science, business and education spent five hours at the museum's Hall of Education voting on the 275 displays entered in the competition. The results will be announced today.

Solar energy was the concept to draw the most attention from the youthful engiocers. They built solar cookers and reflectors and model cities of the future tell the lawmakers some-thing, and I'm delighted to that predicted large alumium reflectors poised on every see so many of them focusing roof

One 12-year-old inventor, Мали Rajachandran from School - Intermediate

Heights even developed a solar - powered pacemaker, which he hooked up to the heart of a larga white rat. It would have to be placed on the surface of the chest with a traospareot cover, he conceded, noting that "the main catch" for human use woold be the need for a spe-cial zipper to expose the sotar-driven instrumeot to the

The mercury-zinc cell now in use is very faulty." he noted, "It can fail at any time, leaving the person in a problem."

Power From Ocean

Kathryn Rominger, a senior at Martin van Bureo High School who wants to be an engineer, built her model power plant on the concept of thermoclines areas of the ocean where there is a layer of warm water on top of cold, as she explained it.

"Energy comes from tem-perature differentials exist-ing in the ocean," she said. Joanthan Kaplan, a 14ar-old student at Styvesant High School, drew a crowd of admiring colleagues with a voice-cootrolled robot thet performed three different programs, and which, he said, he envisioned runoing a nuclear power plant in-stead of human workers. John C. Sawhill, the pres-ident of New York University and a former Federal Energy Administrator, was one of those to judge the exhibition, which will be open to the public through June 9. "It looks to me like these kids are more in tune with alternative energy sources for the future than Congress is," he said. "I think these poteotial voters are trying to

The 71st Jump

To get back to the ring, or oear it, it freezes the blood to contemplate what television, as we know it today, would have done with an attraction like Louis-Conn. That was a natural that drew, on its own, a live gate of almost $2 million, with $625,000 for Louis and $325,000 for the challenger. As we know it today, television pays a million or two for a certified mismatch, makes a bloated two-bour package of a 15-minute performance and bounces the sorry picture off a satellite into living room and saloon.

When Louis was champion be took on a succession of Richard Dunns on what was known as a Bum-of-the-Month tour. In the space of five months he knocked over Red Burman, Gus Dorazio, Abe Simon, Tony Musto and Buddy Baer for purses ranging from $17,000 to $36,000, which was fair pay then and should be now. The press regarded these entertainments without hysteria, radio sold some razor blades between rounds, and everybody forgot them as soon as possible.

The padded productions which a network needs to recover its investment from commercials are painful affairs, especially when the padding includes such embarrassing tripe as Candice Bergen's word portrait of the divine Ali, or whatever she called it. Once the bell rang, however, the broadcast crew avoided the common error of talking the viewers numb.

All looked better than he had three and a half weeks earlier against Jimmy Young-otherwise he would have been liable to arrest and imprisonment-but he was in against a guy who had failed to last a round with jungle beasts like Dan McAlinden, George Dulaire and Rocky Campbell. Dunn is a brave canvashack, a former paratrooper who, the announcer said, had made 70 "successful" jumps.

Struck with a right hand, he would remain upright in a state of suspended animation for a second or two before swooning. Bill Heinz suggested that he was walting for his chute to open.

Had Baeza phoned the track earlier saturday to announce his unavailability, i.e. woold not have so much explaining to do today. But he never called.

O do today, But he never called. One theory was that the jockey was nerely getting back at Jolley, who sublicly criticized Baeza's riding judg-nent before the Kentucky Derby. Asked o evaluate the jockey's conservative ide aboard Honest Pleasure in the Blue Grass Stakes, Jolley said, "Til take he Fifth Amendment." A few days before the Derby, the

The Baezas, who ave four children and are awaiting nother, have enjoyed a reputation as closely knit family. Last week; even thoogh her husband ad oot been home for days, Mirs. aeza reportedly told the jockey's rent, Lenny Goodman, that he was ere-but not feeling well. Oo Sunday, is: Baeza filed a missing-person report with the police. "The only one who knows what hap-pened with Braulio." Goodman said yesterday, "is Braulio himself. There's no sense trying to analyze him." Goodman has been Baeza's agent for the memory of the 12 years, getting 25 percent of the jockey's income in return for lining up the mounts he rides. Probably no other top jockey rides as few horses as Baeza. Yet few riders can match his winning percentage, and few earn more money. Last year, riding full time only about seven months, Baeza won the Eclipse Award as the nation's leading jockey. His mounts earned about $3.7 million, high for the year. Top jockeys normally get 10 percent of the purse. "It's not important for him to ride eight or mine horses a day," Goodman explained. "Ha doesn't need 50-to-1 shots. We like to get on four or five horses a day. That's the way I try to work it.'

The formula has worked well for both men. Baeza has ridden more than 3,000 winners and his mounts have earned more than $35 million in purses. But the price tag in persocal sacrifice has been high. There were times in recent years, because of weight prob-lems, when Baeza could not accept the assignment on any horse who was scheduled to carry less than 119 pounds. Making weight has meant long hours in tha sweat-box, and the resulting weakness has frequently caused him to cancel mouots.

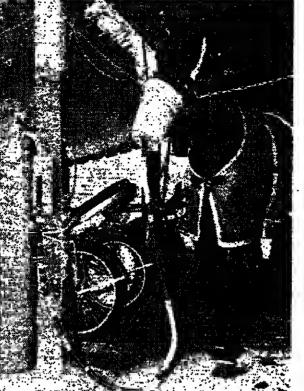

Still, Baeza manages to conserve his energy better than most jockeys, many of whom are forced to ride six or even aeven daya a week to maintain an orderly husiness.

Baeza might go out in the morning a few times a week, to work a stakes horse he likes. But he doesn't have to hustle mounts. Trainers come to him, or rather, to his agent. And Baeza, to whom "yes" or "no"

amounts to a cooversation, rides the horses impassively and well. "When he's on them," says an admirer, "they just don't seem to get into trouhle. You don't see him standing up in the saddle hecause his horse got blocked, stuff like that." Today, though, Baeza will have to ex-tricate himself from tight quarters of a different variety.

Athletic Chiefs Oppose N.C.A.A. Curbs

TARPON SPRINGS, Fla., May 25 (UPI)-A majority of Southeastern Conference athletic directors voiced opposition today to limits imposed by the National Collegiate Athletic Association on the size of coaching staffs. They also opposed impositioo of the financial-need factor in the awarding of athletic scholarships. Last January the N.C.A.A. restricted football staffs to a head coach, eight fulltime and two part-time assistants, with two additional part-time assistants if the school had a junior varsity schedule. Baskethall teams were limited to a head coach, two full-time assistants and a graduate assistant.

Suns Aroused by Criticism

BOSTON, May 25 (AP)-The Phoenix Suns, aroused because of what they feel has been unfair criticism, are eagerly awaiting the second of the four-of-seven-game National Basketball Association championship series against the Bostoo Celtics here Thursdey night.

The Suns' attitude was expressed today hy Dick Van Arsdale and Keith Erickson. "I feel we've been maligned," said Van Arsdale, the only remaining member percent.

of the first Phoenix team in 1968. "I think the people here [the press and broadcasting] nave been untair to us. I hope it stimula(es us. 1 don'i think it ever hurts to have that stimulation factor." Erickson guipped:

"It's good to read in the papers that the series is going to be over in four games. The Celtics won 98-S7, last Sunday. After Thursday the series shifts to Phoenix for games 3 and 4.

Losing the opeoing game on the road has been the Suns pattern in the playoffs. In the Western Conference semifinals against Seattle, they were beaten at the start, then bounced back and won the second game en route to capturing the series in six games.

The same thiog occurred in the western finats against Golden State. The Warriors won the first game at home, but the Suns took the second at Oakland and eveotually captured the series in seven games.

Erickson said he thought the Celtics might be taking the Suns lightly. They figured they were going to be ptaying Gotden State[the de-

Bequia. A lushly green isle in the, Grenadines, west of Barbados in the Southern Caribbean. "It's harder to leave than it is to get there, and getting there is no bed of fragipanis."

Bequia was the subject recently of an article in The New York Times Travel and Resorts Section one of a kind that makes this Sunday section such extraordinary good reading.

For example, how about a trip to Campobello, where F.D.R. sunned? Or a motor odyssev through the 13 ex-colonies? Or exploring the Grand Canyon of the East—the Genesee River Gorge? Or going where you can swim in the nude and make no waves—the French West Indies? Or journeying through a world forgotten by time-1.0.1 the Galapagos?

The Corporation also hereby requests the consents of holders of 1975 Series C. D. E. H and J Bonds to amendments of each of the Series C. D. E. H and J Series Resolutions under which such Bonds were issued. All of such Bonds are held by certain New York City commercial banks referred to under "Purpose of the Amendments". Such banks may obtain consent forms as to these Series directly from the Corporation.

Although the Corporation has requested that consents he given by Jane 10, 1976, the Corporation reserves the right from time to time to extend the time for receipt of the requested consents. Consents which have been given may be revoked in the manner set forth below under "herocation of Consents".

Purpose of the Amendments

The purpose of the amendments hereby requested is to permit the Corporation to carry out certain terms and conditions of the Amended and Bestated Agreement dated as of November 26, 1975 (the "Agreement") among the Corporation certain New York City commercial hanks (the "Banks"), the New York City Pension Funds (the "Pension Funds") and New York (ity Sinking Funds (the "Sinking Funds"), pursuant to which the Banks, the Pension Funds and Sinking Funds agreed to reduce the rate of interest on certain of the Bonds held by them and to reachedule certain of the maturities thereof. Without such amendments, the Corporation could not carry out occtain berows of the Agreement without being in default under the Resolution. See Proposed Adjustment." The Agreement was entered into in part in order to reduce the debt service casts to the Corporation on its Bonds and thus indirectly to assist The City of New York (the "City") in meeting its fiscal problems. The total interest savings to the Corporation over the period from 1976 to 1990 that will result from the adjustment described below will range from $753,055,533, if none of the Banks elect the Series A Option described below under "Propased Adjustment", to a savings of $619,383,660 if all of the Banks elect the Series A Option. See "Additional Information - Effect of Adjustment on the Corporation's Debt Service."

The adjustments in interest rates and matmities, as described below, will not be made in any Bonds except these held by the Banks, Pension Fonds and Sinking Funds which are subject to the

Any Refinding Bonds, under the new Section 208(3), must be issued in fulfilment of one or more of the Corporation's purposes, the debt service coverige tests and other requirements of Section. 202 for the issuance of Bonds runst he met, the Refunded Bonds must be cancelled, and the Refunding Bonds may only be issued with the consent of the persons who are to receive them. The Board of Directors of the Corporation has determined that the Exchange Procedure is in furtherance of the Corporation's purpose in that it has the effect of reducing the Corporation's debt service costs.

As amended, Section 203 would parmit the new Bands to be issued in the Exchange Procedure to be classified as "refunding bonds" within the meaning of the New York State Municipal Assistance Corporation Act, as amended by the Municipal Assistance Corporation for The City of New York Act, both as amended (the "Act"), the result of which is that the issuance of such Refunding Bonds will not be included in the calculation of the Carporation's compliance with its statutory limitation on the anomat of bonds and note that is a marked and Refugice and R on the amount of hours and notes that it may issue. If Section 203 were not so amended, any Bonds issued by the Corporation in the Exchange Procedure would be included in such calculation.

The Corporation is authorized by the Act to issue up to $5,230,000,000 principal amount of bouds and notes, excluding bonds and notes issued to reingd outstanding bonds and notes. As of the date hereof, the Corporation has issued against that limit on aggregate of $3,855,460,000 principal amount of bonds (issued under the Resolution and the Second General Bond Resolution) and notes. The Corporation has stated its intention to issue additional bonds in the future and may also be obligated to do so. First, the Corporation recently announced an exchange offer of $500,000,000 principal amount of its houds to holders of certain City notes, the Corporation reserving the right to issue additional amounts of bonds if additional City notes are tendered. Second, the Corporation has announced its n to issue in the near fature small denomination bonds. Third, under the Agreement, the Pension Funds are oblighted to purchase from the City an apprepate of $2,530,000,000 of City bonds; however, the Pension Funds may elect to buy bonds of the Corporation instead of City bonds, up to a certain dollar amount. If the Corporation had to include in the calculation of bonds and notes that it is anthonized to issue the Bonds which the Corporation anticipates it might be required to issue under the Exchange Procedure, the Corporation would not be able to carry out all of the commitments described above.

miment of Section 902 of the Resolution

An anondment of Section 902 of the Resolution is proposed to carry out the Amending Procedures because the amendments to the Secies Resolutions will require extensions of the original maturity dates of certain Bonds. See "Amendments to Secies Resolutions" for a summary of the amendments being made to the Series Resolutions.

Section SCS of the Beschution (which constitutes a covenant of the Corporation) provides that because such as the second of the second of the mainting of the corporation of the mainting of any the Corporation shall not directly or indirectly extend or assent to the entension of the mainting of any of its Bonds by the purchase of such Bonds or by any other arrangement and that, if the mainting of any Bonds shall be so extended, such Bonds shall not be entitled, in the event of a default under the Resolution, to the benefit of the Resolution or to any payment out of the assets or fonds of the Corpora-tion until prior payment in full of the Bonds the mainties of which were not so extended.

In case the maturity of any of the Books or the time for payment of any such compones or claims for interest shall be extended, except as permitted in the foregoing semience, such Bonds, coopons or claims for interest shall not be entitled in ease of any default under this Resolution to the benefit of this Resolution or to any payment out of any assets of the mation or the founds (en pt funds held in trust for the payment of particular Boads, coope or claims for interest pursuant to this Resolution) held by the Trustee or any Paying Agent, except subject to the prior payment of the principal of all Bonds issued and outstanding the maturity of which has not been extended and of such portion of the sourned interest on the Bonds as shall not be represented by such extended coupons or claims for interest. #### Proposed Adjustment

Under the Agreement, the Banks, Pension Fonds and Sinking Funds, which have advised the Corporation that they hold in the aggregate $1,305,523,000 principal amount of Bonds bearing interest

Under the Agreement, certain of the Bonds held by the Banks, as well as by the Pension Fund and Sinking Funds if they so choose, are to be adjusted by amendments to the adjuid Sanies Basolu-tions (the "Series Resolutions") under which such Bonds were issued (the "Amending Proceeding"), while other Bonds are to be adjusted through an exchange for new Bonds to be issued under 2 new scries resolution called the "1976 Series BB Resolution" (the "Exchange Procedure"). Under either procedure, the Bands will be adjusted as described above and thus will bear interest at 6% per year payable semi-annually from February 1, 1976, with principal payments being made on each February I from 1977 to 1956, the amounts thereof being determined on a substantially level debt service Lusis.

Series A Option. Under the Agreement, the Banks that hold Series A Team Bonds have the option. (the "Series A Option") to retain their Series A Term Bonds at a raduced interest rate of 6% per year, but otherwise without changing the maturities or the mandatory sinking fund payments on such Bonds. The Banks have advised the Corporation that they hold $34,530,000 aggregate mincipal amount of Series A Term Bonds due 1985 (the sinking fund for which begins in 1983) and $239,905,000 aggregate principal amount of Series A Term Bonds due 1990 (the sinking fund for which begins in 1956).

Amendment of Section 203 of the Resolution

An amendment of Section 203 of the Resolution is proposed to carry out the Exchange Procedure under the Agreement. Under Section 205, as now in effect, refunding bonds cannot be issued to carry out the Exchange Procedure.

The Board of Directors of the Corporation has adopted, subject to the required Boadholder consent as described under "Vote Bequired for Amendments of the Resolution", an amendment to Section 203 adding the following new Sections 203(3) and 203(4):

"(3) Notwithstanding any other provision or restriction contained in this Section 203 of (S) How Mathematical and any other processing of How Mathematical and Section 2005 of electricrevia this Resolution, the Corporation by Series Resolution may antiorize, cause to be anticulted and deliver Refauding Bonde, being refauding bonds as defined in the Ast as amended to the date of delivery of such Refunding Bonds, in exchange for Outstanding Bonds of one or more Series or portion thereof including any maturity or portion of a maturity (the "Refunded Bonds"), with the consent of the Holder or Holders thereof, whether or not the Refunded Bonds are subject to redemption prior to their stated maturity and, if so, without regard to the redemption provisions thereof, including, but not limited to, the time of redemption and redemption premium, if any, provided that (1) the Board determines such refamiling to be in fulfilment of one or more of the Corporation's purposes, (ii) the Refunded Bonds are upon the rechange thereof cancelled and no longer Outstanding, and (iii) the Trustee receives the documents required by Section 202"

"(4) The Bonds being refunded pursuant to this Section 203 shall not be desared Outstanding for the perpases of the documents required by Section 203 shall not be destred Outsland-tegring for the perpases of the documents required by Section 202 deliverable persuant to this Section 203.

The amendments to Section 203 would pennit, subject to certain conditions, new Bonds being issued in exchange for Outstanding Bonds to be treated as Refunding Bonds, notwithstanding that (i) there are no monies being segregated for the Bonds being refunded, (ii) the Bonds being refunded are not subject to redemption, and (iii) a portion of a Series being refunded beaus an interest rate lower than Bonds of the Series not being refunded. This method of refunding, by an excitance of Bonds, would be in addition to the method already provided for in Section 203. As now in effect, Section 903 requires each of the conditions referred to in clauses (i) to (iii) to be met.

* Debt service on Bonds issued under the First Ceneral Bond Resolution is to be paid from revenues received by the Corporation from the Sales Tax and Stock Transfer Tax. These Bonds are different from the bonds issued (in December 1975 in exchange for certain notes of The City of New York) under the Second General Bond Resolution on which debt service is to be paid from revenue received by the Corporation from Per Capita State Aid, and from the Sales Tax and Stock Transfer Tax only on a subordinated basis to the Bonds issued under the Resolution and to the outstanding notes of the Corporation.

As so anomied, Section 902 would pennit extensions of maturities of Bonds, or the extensions of the time of payment of interest thereou, as long as the following conditions are met: (1) the Board of Directors has determined that such extensions are in fulfillment of the Corporation's purposes, (2) the holders of Boards subject to such extensions consent thereto, (3) the debt service coverage test of the Resolution is not as if the Bonds affected by the extensions ware being newly issued as of the time at which the extensions are given effect, and (4) the Corporation publishes a notice of such

The Corporation would be able to amend its Series Resolutions under Section 902, 23 amended, and thus carry out the Amending Procedure as long as the debt service overage test reinced to in clause (3) is not as of the closing under the Agreement. The Board of Directors of the Corporation has determined that the Amending Procedure is in furtherance of the Corporation's purgose in that it has the effect of reducing the Corporation's debt service costs.

Vote Required for Amoudments of the Resolution

The amandments to Section 203 and Soction 802 of the Resolution described herein require the ustition consent of the holders of at least two-thirds in principal amount of the Outstanding Bonds under the Resolution ("Outstanding Bonds") to become effective. As of the date hereof, there are Outstanding Bonds in the principal amount of $3,078,685,000 and, secondingly, the consents of holders of $2,052,457,000 me required. Of that amount, the Banks, Pension Funds and Shiking Funds hold SLSUS,323,000 in principal amount. The Corporation has no reason to expect that the Banks, Pension Funds and Sinking Funds will not consent to the amendments as they are either necessary or useful for carrying out the Agreement. If all of the Banks, Pension Funds and Sinking Funds consent to the amendments, the consents of other holders of at least $244,134,000 principal amount of Outstanding Bonds will be required for the amendments to become effective. The Corporation has been advised by the Comptoiler and the Director of the Badget of the State of New York, which holds $250,000,000 of Series V and AA Bonds that the State introde in consent in the amendments.

If the amendment to Section 902 were not consented to by holders of a requisite principal amount of Bonds, the Corporation would not be able to carry out the provisions of the Agreement because Section 902, is now in effect, would prohibit the maturities of any Bonds from being extended by the Corporation as required by the Amending Procedure. See "Amendment of Section SOS of the Results tion". If the amendment to Section 902 were to receive the requisite consent, the Corporation could any out the Agreement even if the anandment to Section 203 were not consented to by the holders of the requisite principal amount of Bonds; however, as discussed under "Amendment of Section 203 of the Resolution", the adjustment in the absence of a Section SIS amendment would cause Bonds issued in the Exchange Procedure to be included in the calculation of the total amount of bonds and notes that the Corporation is anthonized to issue under the Act. See also Procedure for Amendments to Become Effective

Amendments of Series Ecolutions

In order to carry out the Amending Procedure (see "Proposed Adjustment"), each of the relevant Series Resolutions heretafore adopted under the Resolution will be amended to reflect the revised interest rate and payment schedules pursuant to the Agreement. In addition, each of the relevant Series Resolutions will be amended to provide a method for identifying the particular Bonds being adjusted and assigning to those Boads on adjusted interest rate of 6% per amoun and adjusted grial maturities as well as to permit the Bonds that are adjusted under the Amending Procedure to be held in stammed. form (that is, with a legend reflecting the fact that the terms of such Bands have been adjusted), or in such other form as may be acceptable to the Corputition, unless they are exchanged for Board of the same Series reflecting the adjusted terms. Such amendments have been autionized by the Board of Directors of the Corporation subject to the required Bondholder approval. The consents of the holders of at least two-thirds in principal amount of the Bonds of each Secies so affected is required to approve these amendments, as well as the consents of holders of at least two-thirds in principal amount of the Term Bonds by maturity in each Series. In addition, the consents of the holders of all Bornis subject to the Amending Procedure is required.

The Banks own all of the Bonds issued under the Series Resolutions proposed to be smended, except those issued under the Series A and B Resolutions, of which the Banks own some, but not all

Other Series Resolutions. In order for the amendments to the Series C. D. E. H and J L. to be effective, the Resolution requires the written consent of the holders of at least, the principal amount of the poistanding Bonds of each such Series voting as a separate class; it such amountments must be consented to by each of the Banks whose Bonds of such Series affected by the Amending Procedure.

Procedure for Amendments to Become Effective

If the requisite consents of Bondholders to any of the unrendments hereby : are altained, the Dustee is required under the Resolution to file a statement with the tion to such effect. Within 90 days thereafter, the Corporation is required to give notice to t tion in such effect. Within 50 days themeansr, the Corporation is required to give notice to 1 holders by publication and by mail that such consents have been received. The amen-consented to shall be deemed conclusively binding upon the Corporation, the Trustee, car Corporation's paying agains and holders of all Roads and coupons at the expiration of 30 d the Corporation has filed with the Trustee proof of publication of such notice, except in the a final decree of a court of competent jurisdiction setting aside such amendment in a legal : equitable proceeding for such purpose commenced within such 30-day period. The Corpora Instee and any paying span during such 30-day peniod and any such finither period durin any such action or proceeding may be pending shall be entitled in their reasonable discretion such action, or to sufrain from taking such action, with respect to such amendment as th dean exectiont.

Advertising Molson Beer Is Gaining in U.S.

BY PHILIP H. DOUGHERTY Fredericks Gets High W.R.G. Post

Heinekin is the No. 1 im-ported beer, but what's in the No. 2 position? Would you believe Moison Canadian

That's right. And it's moved into that position in receot years and with dis-tribution in only 15 states in the Northeast and no broadcast advertising. Now, in the big beer picture, imports don't account for all that much of United States consumption. The fig-ure is about 1.2 percent of the 150 million barrels that go down the hatch, accord-ing to the Uoited States Brewers Association, But their growth rate is better domestic brands, some than 15 to 20 percent a year dur-ing the last three or four years compared with about 4 percent a year for the last five years, the association SZVS.

The Molson companies, which claim to be the oldest brewery in North America, having started in Mootreal in 1786, market not only Molson Canadian Beer in this country but also Molson Export Ale and Molson Golden Ale. They have been selling their products in the United States for about 20 United States for about 20 years hut really didn't start to move them until 1972 after establishing their own marketing company, the Martlet Importing Company in Great Neck, LI. Its president is Gerald Regan, formerly of Ballantine and Rheingold, and the other day at Rumrill-Hoyt, his agency, he talked about where he's been and where he's going. One of his destinations is more advertising for Molson Causdian Beer and advertising for the first time for Molson Golden Ale, a brand that has been growing nicely with just word of mouth. The idea of hroadcast ad-vertising is also being kicked around.

For the beer Molsoo has branched from newspaper supplement and straight newspaper advertising to the additioo of magazine ads, us-ing Magazine networks to run ads jo Sports Illustrated, Esquire and Playboy in five markets. Supplements are used in 14 markets, and the sports sections of newspa-pers are used in an addition-al 20.

It is the thinking of Mr. Regan and of Daniel R. Lytie, vice president and account group manager working out of Rumrill-Hoyt's Rochester office, that the average Molson drinker discovered it at the same time he was falling to love with the great Canadian outdoors.

"What we've done is ap-propriate Canada for Mol-son," said Donald B. Miller, U.S. Aide Cites Many Benefits chairman of the agency. Last year all of the advertising had the same headline "Ahhhh! Canada! Ahhh! Mor-

After 20 years with Ogilvy & Mather, Charles Fredericks Jr., now an executive vice president, is leaving to be-come president and chief op-erating officer of Wells, Rich, Greene Charles Moss vacated the president's chair earlier this month to become vice chairman and corporate creative head Mr. Fredericks, a graduate of Princeton and the Harvard Law School, started his ad-vertising career at the old Biow Company, where he warked on both the Procter & Gamble and Philip Morris business. Those are both big clients of Wells. Rich. Greene, which is 10 years old and has $187 million in domestic billings.

At Ogilvy he has been management sopervisor of the Lever Brothers, Nahisco and National Distillers ac-counts and is international management supervisor of Unilever and N. V. Nabisco. Yesterday Mr. Fredericks said he thought the new job would be "fun," and in a staff memo at W. R. G. Mr. Moss and Mary Wells Law-position, and the new head is "Tap one of Canada's great natural resources." The sixpacks emphasize Canadian scenes.

Molson, higher in alcohoric content than domestic brews, also has a permium price. The American who drinks it. the people who try to sell it believe, does not drink it th: eotertaining or eating out. Before 1971 Molson Wisold in only nine states through two independent dis-tributors and had annual sales of about 1.7 million imperial gallons, which con-tain about 20 percent more than United States gallons. When he came aboard, Mr. Regan, who previously served Molson as a consultant, set up a network of 26 "master distributors" who sell to sub-distributors. The master distributors make their own daily plckups of brew in Montreal, a fact that allows Martlet to advertise "brewery fresh" beer. For the fiscal year ended March 31 there were sales of 5.4 million imperial sallons. The ad budget is about $750,000—not a particularly heady sum in beer circles. Town & Country & Diamoods

Town & Country magazine has created a 24-page insert for its June issue that should appeal to its affluent readership-it's about diamonds.

A Hungry Agency's Plan Noble-Dury Advertising of Nashville, is determined to turn an enormous loss to its own advantage. The agency, which had and lost the Kentucky Fried Chicken account some time ago, earlier this month was stripped of the Pizza Hut business, whose $6.5 million in billings was 60 percent of its volume.

"So bere we are," writes James M. Elliott Jr., chairman, "an advertising agency that offers more food franchise expertise than any other agency in the country. With-out a franchise account."

That comment is contained in the first of a series of letters that be is sending to major franchise operators. In addi-tion, the agency is running an equally hungry ad cam-paign in Nation's Restaurant Name

Both efforts were part of the agency's "disaster plan" developed 18 months ago.

When someone tells you that a television show is on in Prime Time, you know exactly what they mean. You know the show they're talking about is being telecast during a time period when large numbers of people are at home and most likely to be watching TV. You also know that if you are interested in reaching large numbers of people, such a program can be a good environment for your advertising message.

That's pretty much what we mean when we say National Geographic is Prime Print.

"On May 21, 1946, KLM—the world's oldest airline—became the first airline to fly the New York-Amsterdam route and the first European airline to offer regularly scheduled trans-Atlantic service. Within the week, KLM started advertising in The New York Times. We've never stopped—for good reasons. We use the weekday Times to broaden our coverage of these qualified prospects. And we use The New York Times Magazine to add reach and a longer life for our message. "In 30 years KLM's U.S. service has grown from two DC-4 flights a week to 23 747 flights a week. Advertising professionals have a lasting impression of your ability to take any product or service to market.

In demonstrating that ability, you endowed both your organization and your industry with a legacy of useful wit and enduring wisdom.

Example: your observation in 1966 that the mousetrap maker could no longer afford to wait for the world to discover his mousetrap.

True then. True today.

But in taking their product to market, today's marketers are aware of differences in the paths to be taken. To put it another way, different media offer different values.

Consider, then, a publication that's been going to market with consistent, enormous success. The Wall Street Journal.

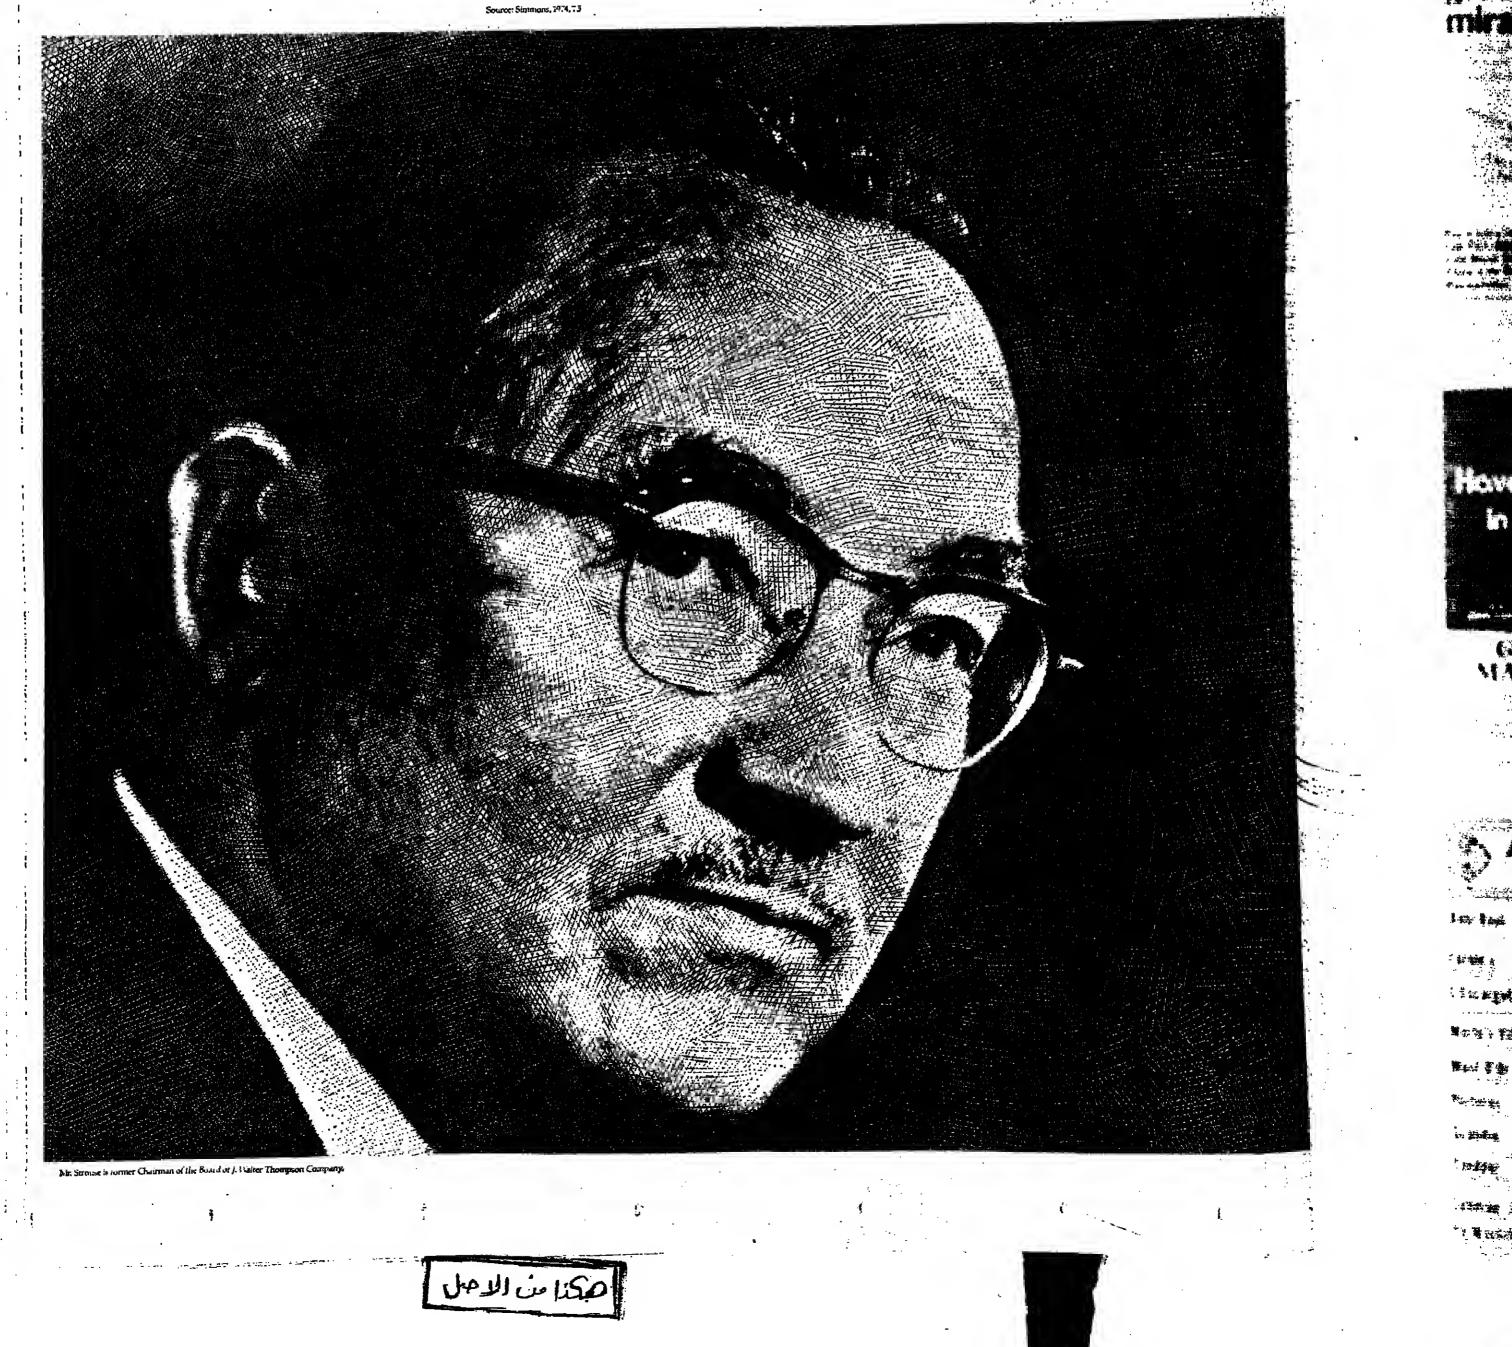

Today, and every business day, 4.6 million American readers depend on The Journal as their essential source of news and information. Because they trust and believe The Journa they tend to view advertising in The Journ with belief, not skepticism. The result is ac not apathy. A P An

Well, what din he think he was writing "The Archi-tect and the Emperor nf Assvria for? To make people laugh at

He left Spain in 1955 when he was 22, established himself in Paris as a particularly spectacular representa-tive of the Theater of the Absurd-Beckett and Ionesco are senior members, his own cnrner is generally called the Theater of Panic—returned to Spain in 1967, was arrested for writing a freewheeling dedication in a book, was de-

But Spain keeps rising in him; particularly now thet it is changing. "In the 1950's I always wrote in French," he said. 'Now I write in Spanish. 'I must be getting more patri-ntic." And in Paris he gets phone calls from strangers, fellow members of this most cohesive and mutually sbrasive pationality. "Spanisrds are a tribe," he said. "They'll get in Paris snd they'll say lets phone Arrabsl. And it's: "Hi. Im -sald Gonzslez Mestre. 1'm a Spaniard."

And these days Mr. Airabal, whose stage and film images run through muider, mutilation, defecation and contorted sexuality-generally in combination and always in the service, he believes, of tenderness and clarity-is pondering his exclusion from his country.

dinner is organizing dishes so that the home cook can join guests at table, while maintaining a cool presence and an outward appearance, at least, of caim. In fact, one of the questions most ofteo asked of those with more than a casual involvement io Chinese cookery is how to plan a menu without panic and how to execute the cooking without repeated and frantic dashes to and from a hot wok. It is a subject we have explored many times over the years with our friend and colleague, the elegant and learned Virginia Lee. The basic menu-planning techniques we have agreed oo are these: Make the menu in a family-style pattern. This consists generally of four to six dishes, when there are to be four to six people at table. Add an additional dish for each two persons. Prepare a few dishes in advance. For example, a few cold appetizers, a hot soup and one or two casseroles or longsimmered dishes. Keep the stir-fried dishes—or dishes that must be made at the last momeot-to one or two, and have all the ingredieots for these dishes sliced, chopped, ground and assembled, ready to toss into the wok. Blend the various logredients that are to be added at more or less the same time as the cooking proceeds. The garlic, ginger, scallions and so on. Or the cornstarch and water. Several dishes for a menu organized along these lines are indicated here. These foods, of course, should be served with rice. abalooe mushrooms to the wok and cook hriefly, about

-At P.S. 75, It's the 3 R's and a C—for Comics

By RICHARD FLASTE Look! Up in the classroom! Somebody's giving away comic books! Freel!! Is this a sinister plot to make people read???? Sinister, no. Clever, yes. The comics that were being handed out as part of a comic-book conventioo at Public School 75 were drawn, written and edited by the children in the West Side school's comic book club.

Professionally produced comics were there, too. But they were for sale or for harter, and to get one you had to have the husiness acumen of a commodities trader.

So it was good that some books were free. That way even if the haggling proved too fierce, nobody would walk away empty-handed. That way, too, everyone who came to the conventioo would be introduced to this approach of the Teachers and Writers Collaborative, a nonprofit group of artists that, in addition to its other activities, has been helping children in three city schools create comic hooks.

The result has been that not only bave the children found a school activity that involves them body and soul but the books they make are also being used as readers by children outside the clubs. And the idea has been employed by teachers io surprising ways-ooe teach-er had her class do book reports in comic form.

The comics cooventioo at P.S. 75 the other day gave official sanc-tion to an activity that had been going on all along in private. The kids were making their own comics and keeping them in their desks," said Phillip Lopate, a writer who works with the children. And then they would trade or sell their own creations as well as commercial comics they had collected.

Michael the Superhero

"We gave them the structure to do it in school," Mr. Lopate said. "We're tapping into their obsession." Although the child-made comics were free at the convention, that didn't stop some artists from sell-ing the original drawings that were used in the comics. One of

He says that he often wakes up in the morning under the impres-sion that he is a superhero. One of the heroes he draws is called Super Michael.

Buyers at the cooveotion could have an original of Super Michael for 10 cents.

While Michael was raking in the dimes, Lee Ross, 11, the creator of Laser Man ('Watch out world, here comes the Laser") was making his fortune hy selling commer-eially produced comics from his collection of 500. He had close to $10 as the day wore on. But it was his own treasured Laser Man that was oo his mind. He said he invented the character because he knew the "laser was a powerful thing that could de-stroy huildings and stuff."

When he draws that character, he said, and sees his story in print. he realizes that "Everybody in the school will know I did this and nobody else."

The stories and drawings range widely in sophistication, of course.

Ellen Energy's Powers

"The kids just came in with such good ideas that there was very" little teaching," he said. For ex-ample, many children, from years of atteotive study, already knew how to draw a fist going through drawing improve.

They had a good notion of how the story line was supposed to go. Gillian Horvath, 10, describes the history of Ellen Energy in an "origios" section. It seems that Ellen was hit hy lightning, the doc-tor managed to keep her alive and Ellen soon discovered that she had dren, he said, are not, after ell, "re-

But random surveys of accredited hospitals ordered by the Federal Government from January 1974 through October 1975 showed that 64 percent of the hospitals inspected failed to meet one or more of the Federal standards.

These standards, among other things, concern the cleanliness of a hospital, its protection against fire and explosion, the adequacy of its nursing staff and equipment

And its record-keeping. Accreditation by the Joint Commission on the Accreditation of Hospitals, an iode-pendect, nongovernmental orgaoization, is supposed to mean that these standards are met. Indeed, the Federal legislation that established Medicare makes accreditation the basis for Medicare eligibility, aod under that law, no regular, periodic in-spections of a hospital are necessary as long as a hospi-tal is accredited.

However, doubts about the completeness of accredita-tion surveys led the Federal Government to order its own random surveys. According to Donald Rubin, president of the Consumer Commission on the Accreditation of Health Services, the 64 per-cent failure rate shows that consumers must act them-selves to force improvement of hospital cooditions.

261 Hospitals Checked

The raodom surveys have, so far, covered only 261 hospitals nationwide, and the Federal agencies iovolved have temporarily suspended further surveys while they consider the implications of their findings. How can a consumer force a hospital to improve con-ditioos? By taking advantage, Mr. Rubin points out, of a procedure that results in a Federal inspection of a hos-pital. If that inspection finds violations that the hospital cannot or will not correct, the hospital can lose its Medicare and Medicaid eli-gibility. Without these funds, hospitals today cannot oper-

The procedure is simple. A consumer who has evidence that a hospital is not meeting proper standards directs a complaint to the Depart-ment of Health, Education and Welfare, Social Security Administration, Bureau of Health Insurance at 26 Federal Plaza, New York, N.Y. 10007, and requests that an inspection survey of the hosmoving industry was highly regulated, the related storage industry was entirely unregu-lated. In practice, he wrote, consumers are rarely aware in advance of the following: There is normally a three-month minimum storage charge: Storing goods involves two moves, one into the ware-house and the second one out, both of which involves costs.

There are "labor in" and "labor out" charges, which cover shifting the goods bepital be conducted. The evidence could be a

This ageocy has no jurisdiction over physicians, and complaints about doctors should not be directed to t. Another piece of evidence that could be used is a conv of the New York State Health Department's Article 28 Inspection report on a hospi-tal. The Health Department is supposed to make these in-spections regularly as the basis for issuing operating certificates to hospitals. However, spokesmen for the department admit that in-spections are backlogged, particularly for proprictary, or profit-making hospitals. However, if an Article 28

isnspection has been done re-cently, the report makes good evidence for the Fod-eral Government. So far, three hospitals in New York City that were the target of complaints filed by Mr. Rubin based on the Article 28 reports have lost their Medicare eligibility. In New York City, these records can be obtained from the State Health Depart-ment's Office of New York City Affairs at 2 World Trade Center. Outside the city they can be obtained from the local health department of-

Protection, Matthew Daymission says that pharmanard, said recently that the invoking of codes of ethics fluenced against the use of had been going on for so advertising by their organizalong that many pharmacists thought they were still not allowed to advertise even in those states where, by law, it was their right to do so. Possibly a bigger reason for the slowness of pharmacists to advertise prescrip-tion drug prices is the slow-ness of consumers to demand the information. The ques-tion, thea, is: "Why haven't consumers been giving thair support to something that straints which appear to incould save them money? One reason is that those who would benefit most those on long-term medica-tion-are likely to be the eld-erly, and while the economic situation of many of them would make price-saving im-portant, they are the least well organized and can exert the least pressure.

Traveling a Problem They are also the ones least inclined to go beyond their own neighborhoods for medicine, although they might have to oay less if they did so; traveling is not easy for them and the cost of traos-portation would have to be figured against any potential saving. Therefore the elderly could not see that advertising would invariebly benefit them, since the oeighborhood pharmacy would probably not he able to afford it.

In New York State every pharmacy, no matter how small, is required by law to post the prices of prescription drugs. Also many siores have been giving discounts to the elderly.

As for consumers not on long-term medication, New Yorl: City's Commissioner of Consumer Affairs, Elinor Gug-genheimer, summed up their attitude when she said not long ago, "People become hysterical when sickness strikes; they get a prescrip-tion from their doctor and that included coupons. rush to have it filled. They don't thick so much about the price, all they want is to Also, an aftermath of the Supreme Court's ruling is alget thet medicine and, if they do think about the price at most certain to be a determinatioo to have generic names of prescriptioo drugs listed the time, they forget about it along with hrand ones. that would require physi-cians to give generic names on prescriptions and if they insisted upoo using brand Court, acting last Monday, has given its opinion, the various states are almost sure to set their own stand-ards and make their own names they would have to regulations. For example, when Connecticut last year gave pharmacists the right to advertise, the statute prohibited the use of "discount. rebate or words of similar import" and the state's At-

states to have such legisla-tion adopted. In New York bills have been introduced write the name of the manufacturer or supplier. Massachusetts and Connecticut are among the other states where tentative moves have been made on hehalf of generic names, either on torney Geoeral decided that prescriptions or in the pharmacists' advertising.

Pharmaceutical companies which, on the whole, stayed neutral in the struggle to get prescription drugs adver-tised, may not take such a beoign attitude toward attempts to enforce the use of generic names. And physi-cians are likely to feel that they're being infringed upon if they are told how to write prescriptions.

Crafts: New Dimensions

By LISA HAMMEL

A second sec second sec

The theme of exploration is certainly a good one for a Bicentennial show. But the celebrations now going oo at three suburban crafts galleries involve neither flag-waving nor the remem-brance of wilderness past.

Rather, they are all concerned with today's trail-blazing in crafts - seeing what clay or metal or wood or fiber can be made to do.

The range of expression in the show at the Craftsman's Gallery, at 16 Chase Road in Scarsdale, N.Y., runs from the beautifully respectful handling of wood in small objects that are triumphs of engineering (by Lee Rohde and Michael Kovach), to the curious and melancholy Kovach), to the curious and meiancholy expressionism of Raymoo Elozua who does little clay bowls with ladders lead-ing oowhere, to the baroque ceramic bonbons of Elisa D'Arrigo. And there are dozens of other highly individual nbjects in this large show. There is a smaller group show at Crafts Concepts, 41 Hudson Street in Ridgewcod, N.J., in which each of 15 artists is represented by a more conceoartists is represented by a more conceotrated body of work.

Funny Porcelain Figures

Laura Wilensky, who incidentally appears io all three abows, seems to have pulled out the stops for her New Jersey appearance. Her horse-faced porcelain figures march around inside comical bowls or are draped over orange juice squeezers and fish platters.

Ruth Geneslaw has made e birthday cake for the occasion-but don't try to light it: it's all wool, which bas been woven, crocheted and wrapped. Experimental glass is under-represented in both group shows, but there are some clear leaded glass pieces by Ingo Williams and Katherine West in Ridgewood that are a delight for their strength of design and utter utility. The show at the Elemeots, 14 Liberty

Way in Greenwich, Conn., deals vividly with one medium, porcelain.

Doris Licht-Tomono makes a standard white porcelain Orieotal vase, complete with calligraphy—and then punches it Coille Hooven's gohlets, cups and tea-pots are decorated with blue lizards and spaghetti-haired camels and llamas. The tipsy mauve and lavender and piok teapots and cups of Juta Savage and Ann Christianseo are pure nostalgia -set on its ear.

And theo there is the work of David Snair, who creates beauty out of techni-cal wizardry: exquisite silvery-blue hlossoms (actually little glaze crystal explosions) blooming down the curving leogth of a shimmering gold-tooed vase. These are all celebrations of the bap-plest kind: the skills of the past wedded to the technology and imagination of today today. The show at Crafts Concepts runs through June 5; the Craftsman's Gallery June 12; the Elements, June 19.

Questioning the Questions BY ANATOLE BROYARD

THE AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF MY SIOTHER By Rosellen Brown, 272 pages, Doubleday, $7.55.

Anyone who goes through a good deal of modern fiction must have had this experience so often that it seems like a recurrent bad dream: You read a novel that ahows coosiderable evidence of taleot, intelligence, awareness and technical skill, a book that addresses itself to urgent and timely themes and when you have reached its last page, you find yourself wondering what you are supposed to feel. You have been giveo plenty to think about, but that's not the real business of fictinn, which is to put you in a posthypnotic trance, where your will is no longer your own and you are suffering or are thrilling to the vicissitudea of someone else'a life Rosellen Brown For 270 pages of Rosellen Brown's first novel, I assumed that ahe had something original and startling up her sleeve, that abe was going to. find a way to fuse her two main themes into a single chnid that would anund the hnpe or doom of mothers and daughters in our day and age. Because it was impossible to accept io any glad sense either the mother or the daughter in "The Autobingraphy of My Mother." I aupposed that Miss Brown was gning to time the tenaion be-tween them, to rewrite the equation somehow, ahow me a resolution I never thought of. Everything pointed this way: What other reason could there be for describing auch a total antagonism between parent and child but to ahow us how it could be modulated or bridged; how we would have to learn to live with it or die of it.

Everything for Eternity

Gerta Stein, the mother, is a 72-year-old lawyer who has devoted her life to "the defense of indefensible and unpopular people." She doea this because ahe loves principles, not people. For example, ahe wins in court the release of a paranoid schizo-phreoic who will probably barm himself or someone else-because he has been improperly interned. His rights are more important to Gerta than his well-being. She sees nothing in the here and now, but everything under the aspect of eternity. Gerta once had a husband, but since her

pasaion found greater satisfaction in court

than in bed, she got rin of him. The price she paid for having briefly lost sight of herself was Renata, her daughter. Renata is the kind of young woman who would not knnw, what in do with herself if she did not have a mother to distinguish herself from in every possible wey. She is a parody of every psychoanalytic theory of rebellion, a negative parasite that hates what it feeds on.

THE NEW YORK TIMES, WEDNESDAY, MAY 26, 1975

يعكذا من الاجل

Gerta, the mother, has a compulsion in be in the right, and she generally is, which makes her about as interesting as a computer. This leaves Renata nothing but a boring wrongheadedness to get through her life with. The reader is hard put to choose between them.

Diapered in Epiphanies

But Recata has a daughter, illegitimate, of course, and she would seem to be the clue. We know sil too well the syndromes of those other two generations: This third one, then, must be diapered in epiphanies. And a little child shall lead them. It is a heavy burden for the child, but we have nuwhere else to look-Geria and Renata are catatonically consistent. I suppose it would not be fair in tell you what happens tn the child. All I can say is that I am grateful that I dnn't have to hear the predictable recriminations from both sides that must have followed Miss Brown's conclusion. To be sure, Miss Brown's book raisea a number of interesting questions, but it is part of the complacency of some modern novelists to believe that they need only aak interesting questions-nn answers are required. Answer may be the atrong a word. A novel need not give us answers, but it shnuld, perhaps, question the questions until they bleed a little. The main trauble with "The Autobiog-raphy of My Muther" lies in the fact that Gerta is monnlithic and Renata is, well. manonucleotic. Larger than life and smaller than life-that is the way they strike me. One gives me aggraphabia with her abstractions, and the nther makes me feel elaustrophobic inside her narrow egoism. There are gond things in the bonk, must not forget to mention that: ints of smart wisecracks' about the opposing camps; a scene before a Congressional committee in which "under the table the feet of half a dozen Senators danced and twined and only in the most riveting no personal cries, agonized appeals, did they stand still respectfully, shamed"; a talk show on which Renata and Gerta appear together and do their respective numbers, In fact, Miss Brown is so lively some-times that I'm almost tempted to say that it's not her fault that her novel isn't better

-society is to blame. But nn, it hasn'l quite come to that yet.

The man who made the private eye the great American hero.

Raymond Chandler created the most famous of America's hardbuiled private eye heroes, Philip Mariowe, But in writing books like The Big Sleep. The Long Good-bye, and Farcwell. My Lovely, he went far beyond the limits of the "mystery genre" to become an important novelist admired hy critics such as Edmund Wilson and Somerset Maugham.

Frank MacShane's biography, based on previously unpublished correspondence and exclusive interviews, gives us a fascinating portrait of Chandler the manthe barhed wit, incurable romantic, and tragic alcoholic. Here too is Chandler the screenwriter during Hollywood's Golden Age, working with everyone who was anyone: Bogart ("the genuine article"). Hitchcock ("cramping"). Veronica Lake ("Miss Moronica Lake"). Billy Wilder I'an agnnizing experience that has probably sinrtened my lile".

"A magnificent biographer. This is a remarkable work of scholarship and those who have considered that Chandler was a mere minor whodunit man must now change their tune. thanks to MacShane's Inving and clegant hook. Recommended unreservedly." - ANTHONY BURGESS "Engrassing, and has the persistent ring -ROSS MACDONALD of truth." "An immensely detailed portrait .... Chandler emerges from the book as a very powerful and psychologically interesting figure." - LEONARD MICHAELS, front page New York Times Book Review With 16 pages of photographs, $12.50

'Unrealistic' Budget

Although it was rejected by a majority of the City Council's Finance Committee and denounced by Bronx Borough President Robert Abrams as too austere, Mayor Beame's $12.5 billion expense budget, as adopted by the Board of Estimate, may not be austere enough to pass its final tests in Albany and Washington.

State and Federal officials charged with overseeing the city's three-year effort to regain solvency already have expressed reservations abont the Mayor's 1976-77 spending plan. Their objections appeared to echo those voiced by Comptroller Harrison J. Goldin, who charged that the budget was not only based on such "unrealistic" assumptions as state takeover of $24 million in court and prison costs and a $55 million reduction in welfare and child-care expenses but also "ignored" $20 million in anticipated additional debt service.

Compared with its recent predecessors, the new budget represents substantial progress toward achieving a more realistic balance between municipal spending and revenues. But it is difficult to imagine that the flaws cited by Comptroller Goldin will escape the attention of investigators for the state's Emergency Financial Control Board and the Federal Treasury-the ultimate arbiters of New York's fiscal future.

To win their approval, the Mayor and his aides will have to prepare additional cuts to cover gaps which have already developed, such as Federal rejection of a city plan for using housing subsidies, and others that can be anticipated. To do so will entail more agonizing choices for politicians and sacrifices by citizens; but it is the only way to avoid the larger catastrophe that would result from the city's failure to meet its goal of a balanced budget by mid-1978.

The Crime Package

Though it will probably generate a great deal of beat, Governor Carey's anticrime program is generally quite moderate and, if passed, should serve to make the state's criminal laws a bit more intelligent and humane. The most controversial aspects of the package are apt to be those dealing with plea bargaining. Generally, people who believe that a system of mandatory sentencing is an effective answer to the crime problem will be disappointed. Those who understand that harried prosecutors and judges need as much flexibility as possible in their efforts to keep the overbuidened. criminal justice system creaking along and even modestly credible will be pleased.

One of the major aims of the legislation is to eliminate the court calendar logiam caused by the prohibition against plea bargaining on the least serious major drug offenses (A-III felonies). Prosecutors around the state claim that since offenders (usually drug-addicled street sellers) charged with A-III felonies cannot plead guiky to lesser felonies—as, ironically those charged with more serious A-I and A-II felonies are able to do-they demand trials three times as often as other drug offenders, thus gobbling up a disproportionate sbare of court and prosecutorial time. Under the Governor's proposal, A-III bargains would be permitted. The program does contain a moderate restraint on plea bargaining in non-drug felonies, requiring that pleas to a serious charge be at least to a felony offense, rather than to a misdemeanor. Any more stringent restrictioo would require substantially increased money for courts and prosecutors since mandatory penalties almost always result in sharply increased demands by defendants for trials. The package also contains constructive bills oo handguns, marijuana and civil liberties. The proposal to decriminalize possession of up to two ounces of marijuana, imposing a fine instead, would bring the state's law into line with recent medical research on drugs and would accord with legislative changes that a number of other states have already made. Other bills would toughen handgun restrictions by imposing mandatory sentences on persons convicted of illegal possession of such weapons and by setting minimum standards for their manufacture and sale. Finally, the package contains a bill which would seal the records of persons charged with, but later cleared of crimes, thus affording some reasonable protection for their reputations. The Governor's program is a measured and constructive contribution to a field in which there is often substantially more heat than light. We bope that the Legislature will receive and debate these proposals with a moderation and intelligence commensurate with their conception.

is making upon Syrian policymakers, there was good reason to believe that Mr. Assad would not bave made an issue of the pending renewal-if it could have been done quietly. Having blown that opportunity. Mr. Waldheim would better serve the interests of peace by sbowing more firmness in his Damascus talks than be did in the diplomatic exchanges that prepared the way.

Repression in Argentina

Under the guise of rooting out supporters of left wing urban guerrillas, elements of Argentina's armed forces appear to be accelerating a campaign of murder, torture, arbitrary arrests and drastic purges. Recent arrivals in the United States present a picture of Buenos Aires, Cordoba and other major Argentine cities dismayingly reminiscent of the brutal repression imposed on Chile after the overthrow of President Salvador Allende in 1973.

The urban terror perpetrated by the Marxist People's Revolutionary Army and the renegade Peronist Monteneroa has long been an extremely disruptive and costly problem for Argentina, matched increasingly in the last two years by savage counter-terror from the ultrarightist Argentine Anti-Communist Alliance. But the direct involvement of regular military elemeots and the spread of the repression acrosa a wide spectrum of Argentine intellectual and cultural life are recent developments.

In his inaugural address as President after the ouster of Isabel Martínez de Perón in March, Gen. Jorge Rafael Videla promised to respect human rights. There is no evidence that he and the other members of the ruling junta condone the receot military excesses that have belped account for an estimated 200 deaths from terrorism in the last two months. What is in doubt is not General Videla's good intentions but his ability to control military men driven by obsessions that go far beyond anything remotely connected with Communism.

As Argentina drifted into political and economic chaos under the hapless Mrs. Perón, there were military leaders who advocated a harsb takeover in the Chilean pattern as the only way to save a polarized Argentina from civil war. General Videla and the officers who supported him held out for a more moderate course and carried the day-temporarily. Now, two months later, they seem In danger of losing out to the military extremists who always opposed moderation.

On bis recent visit to Santiago, Secretary of the Treasury William E. Simon declared that economic ald for Chile would be linked to the military Government's progress in restoring basic freedoms. In considering the large-scale economic assistance desperately needed by Argentina, the United States and other creditor governments would be well-advised to emphasize that same condition,

Soviet Jewry: The Oppression Continues

To the Editor: More than a year has passed since some forty lawyers from twenty coun-. tries assembled in London to examine the question of Soviet Jewry and the rule of law. The conference adopted a statement, representing the coasensus of all participants, which pointed out that "Soviet Jews wishing to leave the Soviet Union have been consistently subjected to harassment and other forms of maltreatment" and that "in trials of Soviet Jews (from which neutral observers have been excluded) human rights have been denied. Soviet law and procedure infringed, and unwarranted punishments inflicted."

We, the sponsors of the London Conference, must express our deep regret that the Soviet Government has not yet seen fit to alter its policy and put an end to oppressive and unlawful measures directed toward Jews. Trials of Soviet Jews, whose only real "offense" is their desire to leave the U.S.S.R., continue unabated, and harsh sentences are imposed. Jewish applicants for exit permits are in many instances arbitrarily detained or dismissed from their employment, expelled from institutions of higher learning or subjected to irregular mili-

Toward a Clean Park

To the Editor: Congratulations on your editorial of May 5 calling attention to the need to document erosion, damaged trees, silted-up lakes and poods, beer cans and candy wrappers.

We are, in fact, doing precisely that, but more importantly we are also doiog something about the problem. On Arbor Day, April 30, we planted two new American Elms and contributed elm care equipment and orientation to the Department of Parks. We have just dooated three small litter buggies to the department for use seven days a week in keeping the overflowing trash containers empty and preventing litter from being spread around the park. We have also purchased for the department 300 new litter containers and a summer's supply of plastic bags to facilitate collection. We are conducting surveys of broken benches, lamp posts, guard rails and other necessary facilities and plan to offer oor assistance in having tary call-ups, their communications with the outside world, whether by post, telephone or radio, are severed and their basic rights disregarded in a variety of ways. Despite official assurances to the contrary, there has been a drastic decline in the number of Jews permitted to leave the U.S.S.R. io the last twelve months,

This unfortunate state of affairs is particularly deplorable in the light of the recent Helsinki declaration and at a time when men and womeo of good will everywhere, including the U.S.S.R., fervently hope for a détente based on removal of barriers and respect for fundamental freedoms.

We urge that public opinion should be brought to bear on the Government of the Soviet Union, in order to persuade it to recoosider its policy and comply with the universal standards of the rule of law.

Mission to Damascus

Secretary General Waldheim is running a seriousand possibly unnecessary-political risk in his sudden personal mission to Damascus today, aimed at securing Syria's agreement for renewal of the United Nations buffer force oo the Golan Heights.

Against the counsel of key diplomats involved in Middle East negotiations, Mr. Waldheim set off without any firm assurance that Syrian President Assad will agree to a renewed mandate free of encumbering political conditions. A dangerous precedent was set last November when, at Syria's insistence, the previous sixmonth renewal was obtained only in return for a Security Council role for the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Mr. Assad has been thrown on the defensive by the continuing turmoil in Lebanon; bis rivals in the Arab world are showing themselves quick to seize upon his political discomfort for their own interests. Under such circumstances, the Syrian leader may now be strongly tempted to try extracting another political price for what should be regarded as a routine procedure to maintain the Syrian-Israeli truce.

Considering the demands which the Lebanese crisis

Drilling for a Law

Representatives who want to see off-shore drilling for oil proceed in a safe and sane way are scheduled to try again today to pry a bill to that end out of the Rules Committee. The measure, which is being guided through the parliamentary maze by Representative John M. Murphy of New York, is the product of a select committee drawn from the Interior, Merchant Marine and Judiciary Committees. For lack of an additional couple of votes, the Rules Committee, under fierce pressure from the major oil companies, has been keeping the bill from the floor, presumably planning to delay action until the Presidential conventions are imminent and Congress has no further mind for controversy.

With some variation, the Senate has passed its own version of this badly needed bill, which calls for state and local participation to prevent off-shore drilling from creating oo-shore bavoc-to the economy as well as the environment. The legislation would compel the publicizing of Federal leasing intentions five years in advance and give interested parties-Governors, the fishing industry, recreation officials, plain private citizens -a voice in planning and surer recourse to the courts when a substantial case can be made against a particular lease.

Other provisions would make the drillers liable for clean-up costs and damages in the event of spills not by administrative regulation but by statute; encourage greater participation of small oil companies in the exploitation of the Outer Continental Shelf; and assure a fair distribution of the discovered fuel to needy areas. Regardless of how individual members may feel about the bill, there can be no excuse for burying legislation of this importance in a committee whose function is not to judge a measure's merit but to speed legislative traffic_

School Bus Safety

Does the most precious cargo carried on America's roadways-the children riding in school buses-receive as much care in bandling as a bag of produce trucked to market? This is the question that must once again be asked in the aftermath of the tragic school bus accident that killed 28 high school students in California.

Presumptive evidence of insufficient safety precautions seems abundant. Even if a contributory cause was a poorly designed bridge and ramp which failed to prevent the vehicle's fatal 30-foot plunge, other factors involved were a 26-year-old "back-up bus" which had missed its last inspection and a bus driver whose record included traffic violations.

The National Transportation Safety Board as well as California investigators are now examining the causes of the accident. Every state and local agency responsible for the safety of school transportation throughout the country ought to view this tragedy as a flashing yellow light signaling the need for immediate inspection and reinspection of all drivers and buses,

Darkness at Noon

WASHINGTON LIND FROM birth, I have never had the opportunity to see myself and have been completely dependent on the image I create in the eye of the observer. To date it has not been narcissistic.

There are those who assume that since I can't see, I obviously also cannot hear. Very often people will converse with me at the top of their lungs, enunciating each word very carefully. Conversely, people will also often whisper, assuming that since my eyes don't work, my ears don't either.

For example, when I go to the airport and ask the ticket agent for assistance to the plane, he or she will invariably pick up the phone, call a ground hostess and whisper: "Hi, Jane, wa've got a 76 here." I have concluded that the word "blind" is not used for one of two reasons: Either they fear that if the dread word is spoken, the ticket agent's retina will immediately detach, or they are reluctant to inform me of my condition of which I may not have been previously aware.

On the other hand, others know that of course I can hear, but believe that I can't talk. Often, therefore, when my wifa and I go out to dioner, a waiter or waitress will ask Kit if "he would like a drink" to which I respond that "indeed he would."

This point was graphically driven bome to me while we were in England. I had-been given a year'a leave of absence from my Washington law firm to study for a diploma in law degree at Oxford University. During the year I became ill and was hospitalized. Immediately after admission, I was wheeled down to the X-ray room. Just at the door sat an elderly woman —elderly I would judge from tha sound of her voice. "What is his name?" the woman asked tha orderly who had been wheeling me.

"What's your name?" the orderly repeated to me.

"Harold Krents," I replied. "Harold Krents," ha repeated.

"When was he born?" "When were you born?" "Nov. 5, 1944," I responded.

"Nov. 5, 1944." the orderly intoned. This procedure continued for approximately five minutes at which point even my saint-like disposition deserted me. "Look," I finally blurted out, "this is absolutely ridiculous. Okay, granted I can't see, but it's got to have become pretty clear to both nf you that I doo't need an interpreter." "He says he doesn't need an interpreter," the orderly reported to the woman.

I was playing basketball with my father in our backyard according to procedures we had developed. My father would stand beneath the hoop, shout, and I would shoot over his head at the basket attached to our garage. Our next-door neighbor, aged five, wandered over into our yard with a playmate. "He's blind," our neighbor whispered to her friend in a voice that could be heard distinctly by Dad and me, Dad shot and missed; I did the same. Dad hit the rim; I missed entirely; Dad shot and missed the garage entirely. "Which one is blind?" whispered back the little friend.

I would hope that in the near future when a plant manager is touring the factory with the foreman and comes upon a handicapped and oonhandicapped person working together, his comment after watching them work will be, "Which one is disabled?"

Horold Krents, a member of the President's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped, is outhor of the autobiography, "To Race the Wind" and was the inspiration for the play and film, "Butterflies Are Free."

Detente Without Detente

By C. L. Sulzberger

PARIS-Semantics, or the meaning of meaning, is e principal element of aontemporary diplomacy. The United States practices détente without dering to use the word and the Soviet Union practices e hard-line policy while masking it as détente. And each superpower, for its own reasons, pretends the contrary of what it is doing.

In March, President Fnrd, afraid of the Republican Party's right wing, decided to drop the much-debated word: Détente was deleted from the official vocabulary. While it is claimed Mr. Ford never specifically instructed his Secretary of State 10 ahandon the word, Mr. Kissinger feels it would be tactless to use it during the campaign. French President Giscard d'Estaing wonders ironically if Americans can't pronounce détente.

Nevertheless, the architects of United States policy insist that policy hasn't changed, no_matter how it is described. They claim Washington still presses for "détente" although it doesn't use the word itself.

But they also claim Moscow's determination to keep mentioning détente as a policy label is deccitful. Washingtoo says nothing even resembling détente occurred when the Russians sent their technicians, arms and Cuban troops to Angola. Nor does the U.S.A. see détente in rising Soviet military investment.

Whatever the reality underlying semantics, it is clear certain things are taking place under the label of détente—or nondétente—that aren't easing international tensions. Some new international stresses are visibla —as io Africa; some are merely suspected.

In the latter sense nobody in tha West pretends with any assurance to understand what's going on in China. One statesman says: "We wouldn't ever know if Peking and Moscow were preparing a friendship treaty while they scream against each other. But something deeper than meets the eve is happening."

One aspect puzzling American observers is that the disgraced Teng Hsiao-ping sought to build up Chinese Industrial strength to successfully stand up against both Moscow and Washington. But the "radicals" who ousted Teng want to slow down industrialization. De facto, this makes China more dependent on the U.S.A. in its argument with the Soviets. Either way, because of China's importance to the world power halance, this affects detente--or nondétente.

Although the word detente has been refrigerated in WashIngton—which insists it hasn't changed basic policy one whit—and although it is proclaimed in Moscow—where the meaning nf meaning has become hlurred some hyproducts of relaxation are clearly in trouble.

SALT negotiations on strategic arms have hit a reef. Although only a few final concessions need to be arranged, the moment doesn't seem as ripe for accord as before tha U.S. election campaign or before Leonid Brezhnev's illness ignited a power competition in Moscow. Likewise, Vienna negotiations for East-West mutual force reductions are deadlocked. The Americans now insist they must await "the unblocking of everything."

Likewise, while diplomats insist "objective conditions" have moved nearer to another step io Middle East negotiations, the semantical gap again frustretes progress. Washington may well be awaiting more initiatives from Europe--which could be the spin-off significance of President Giscard d'Estaing's announced willingness to intervene in Lebanon.

The United States opposes Lehanese partition but is leery of direct involvement, It fears that unless a settlement is soon trached Lebanon will become either an open enemy of Syria or an appendage of Syria. Either way this would upset regional equilibrium.

The whole Eastern Mediterranean area, in fact, contributes in the unease resulting fram détente's unclear future. The Greek-Turkish dispute that nriginated nver Cyprus hut goes much deeper, continues to fester. Both the Athens and Ankara Governments recognize that conditions are ripe for a deal; hut each fears the repercussions of vociferous local opinion if an accord is reached. Here again, Washington (now that it is muting détente) seems readier in see its European allies take a greater initiative for peace.

And Greco-Turkish problems impunge directly on Europe's expected crisis after Yugnslavia's 84-year-old President Tuto dies. The Marshal still seems indestructible; but his country's future is a matter of continual diplomatic discussion. The West is concerned lest the Soviets try to promote internal disputes there—and then atinternal disputes there—and then atimpt intervention to "settle" them.

With the cooling of formal East-West contacts — especially hetween Washington and Moscow—it becomes virtually impossible th discuss such potential problems realistically, even in an informal way. This condition, hnwever, is likely th apply so long as detente is respected but not mentioned in the U.S.A. and mentioned but not honnred in the U.S.S.R.

HE CHILEAN military junta is making yat another, attempt to reduce the international opprobrium it suffers from. On his recent visit to Santiago, Secretary of the Treasury William E. Simon was greeted with the announcement of the release of 49 political prisoners and the lifting of a ban, enforced since July 1975, against visits of humanrights commissions.

Likewise, in December when the Organization of American States agreed to hold its general session of June 1976 in Santiago, the number of arrests noticeably declined, and late in February the military junta issued a new decree advertised as a guarantee against the use of torture. Twice previously the junic had attempted to improve its human rights image.

In September 1974, it abolished the state of internal war in force since the 1973 coup, when the regime of President Salvador Allende Gossens was overthrown. However, since the war tribunals continued to function under new legislation, the change was in name only. In May 1975, a decree was passed to punish torture and prevent Illegal deteotions, and for two months, as is the case now, the number of new arrests declined substantially.

Nevertheless, during this same period correspondents of North American oewspapers and magazines and the Committee of Cooperation for Peace in Chile, an interchurch organization defending political prisoners, reported oew instances of the death of prisoners, disappearances, and the continuation of torture.

In July 1975, the junta denied entry to representatives of the United Nations Human Rights Commission, which it had previously agreed to admit, and in the following months it barred North American correspondents. At the same time it mounted a strong campaign against the churches, beginning with the expulsion of the Lutheran Bishop, the Rev. Helmut Frenz, and culminating with the arrest of 11 members of the Peace Committee, among them a number of clerics. Gen. Augusto Pinochet then forced Raul Cardinal Silva Henriquez, to dissolve the committee,

One must thus question whether, in fact, the current gestures constitute any real improvement for human rights. The 49 persons released before the visit of Secretary Simon represent little more than I percent of the political prisoners still in jail, and new detentions have continued. It is significant that on May 12, immediately after Mr. Simon's visit, Hernan Montealegre, one of the principal human rights lawyers in Chile, was arrested. The process of arrest and release, endured since the coup, continues. Torture remains a standard interrogation method — three cases were reported to me during the second week of April. Although the junta is carryiog out fewer arrests, it has recently undertaken new measures to increase fear and silence critics. They are directed primarily against the churches, universities, labor unions, and some elements of tha news media.

In March, the following events took place: Radio Balmaceda was shnt down for six days for having reported a scarcity of sugar, and its director was arrested and confined to an isolated villaga near the Bolivian border; at least 103 adolescents were expelled from a secondary school for suspected political activities, and although General Pinochet ordered their readmission two weeks later they were still under, investigation; a meeting called by the church to gather goods for indigent students was canceled; North American and Chilean labor union representatives called off e meeting because of the presence of secret police. in the union hall; reprisals were taken against persons who spoke with three. United States visiting Congressmen. A sophisticated totalitarian government is more dangerous than a crude one, and the recent Chileao developments show the increased sophistication of the junta. But there is oo evidence of any real progress for

If the United States Government ia sincere in its professed dedication to human rights, it must reconsider its foreign-aid policy toward Chile. The meeting in Santiago next month

The meeting in Santiago next month of the Organization of American States, whose agenda includes the question of human rights in Chile, and the projected participation of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, can influence the direction the junta will take on human rights.

If the O.A.S. does oot produce a clear statement on this issue, and if the United States does not make further economic and military aid to Chile conditional on a substantive changa in its policy toward human rights, than the junta will have succeeded in its tactic of making small, temporary concessions during periods of increased international pressura, while continuing to silence all internal protest and maintaining a firm totalitarian grip over its own citizens.

José Zalaquett, a lawyer who acted as chief counsel for the Committee of Cooperation for Peace in Chile, was orrested April 5 and deported to France less than o month after, having spoken with three visiting United States Congressmen about human rights violations.

About New York

The mellow music that drifted among the trees in a corner of Central Park during the "Bite of the Big Apple" gastronomic promotioo last Saturday would have been familiar to many New Yorkers 60 years ago.

Safely remote from the thumps and screeches of rock country - and - Western and groups with their 10-foot amplifiers, a German band played marches, waltzes and polkas in the balloon-hung pavillion operated by Schai-ler & Weber, the sausage vir-tuosos, and Beck's Beer of Bremen

This period came to an end zplie with the twin blows of tha entry of the United States in World War I—when superpa-triots refuaed to eat pumper-18te A A orle nickel and Leiderkranz and renamed sauerkraut "liberty equ] cabbage"—and the imposition of Prohibition, during which the noble malt beverage was ajæ ny o uilt<sup>c</sup> debased to "near beer" of onda little flavor and needled with ορτζ ιορέ alcobol to restore its kick.

Outlying districts of the outer ooroughs had picnic parks, usually operated by breweries, that offered sports, dancing, mountains of food at derisory prices, and endless streams of beer to fugitives from the airless and crowded streets of the center city.

A few beer gardens hung on into the 1930's. One, re-called by Dr. Alfred J. Sieg-man, the eminent psychoanathem in bulk, and what they lyst, flourished on Bushwick 'call German potato salad Avenue in Brooklyn under shouldn't happen to a dog."

The German band io Ceo-tral Park was the Foehrer Musik Freunde, which means the Foehr Frienda of Music. Most of its members are immigrants from the island of Foehr, which lies about 10 miles off the coast of Schles-donation to its treasury) was playing that day under the auspices of Beck's Beer, but it has also played on behalf of Lowenbrau and Dinckle-lacker, said Mr. Simonsen, a slim, rosy-cheeked man with a reddish Kaiser Wilhelm mustache who is not at all your usual bass-drum type. "Foehr ia a resort area, very much like Cape Cod." he said.
